June 10th 2021

Dear Parents/Carers,

We have consulted you previously about our RSE policy but in light of the statutory changes to requirements for relationships and sex education (RSE), we would like to consult with you again to make sure that our updated RSE curriculum meets the new requirements (see document below) as well as the needs of our pupils.

We've worked hard to make sure that our new curriculum reflects:

- Our pupils' age and maturity levels, as well as their cultural and religious backgrounds
- The values of our school community
- Every pupil's learning needs
- What pupils need to know to be healthy and safe in school, in their personal relationships and in the wider world

We've recently updated our RSE policy to include our proposed new curriculum. We are using Jigsaw, a comprehensive curriculum for all aspects of PSHE that builds progressively from Year R to Year 6. The curriculum has been updated to include all the latest Department for Education statutory requirements. This policy is on the school website here:

<https://barham.kent.sch.uk/assets/documents/policies/Relationships---Sex-Ed-policy-1620992813.pdf>

If you have any feedback or would like further clarification on any aspect of our RSE policy and curriculum, please email me directly headteacher@barham.kent.sch.uk or speak to me at the school gate by June 30th 2021. Thank you.

Yours sincerely

RSE expectations: primary

Here's what all pupils should know by the end of primary school. These are the expectations set by the Department for Education.

Families and people who care for me

That families are important for children growing up because they can give love, security and stability

The characteristics of healthy family life, commitment to each other, including in times of difficulty, protection and care for children and other family members, the importance of spending time together and sharing each other's lives

That other people's families, either in school or in the wider world, sometimes look different from their family, but that they should respect those differences and know that other children's families are also characterised by love and care

That stable, caring relationships, which may be of different types, are at the heart of happy families, and are important for children's security as they grow up

That marriage represents a formal and legally recognised commitment of two people to each other which is intended to be lifelong

How to recognise if family relationships are making them feel unhappy or unsafe, and how to seek help or advice from others if needed

Caring friendships

How important friendships are in making us feel happy and secure, and how people choose and make friends

The characteristics of friendships, including mutual respect, honesty, trust and trustworthiness, loyalty, kindness, generosity, sharing interests and experiences, and support with problems and difficulties

That healthy friendships are positive and welcoming towards others, and do not make others feel lonely or excluded

That most friendships have ups and downs, and that these can often be worked through so that the friendship is repaired or even strengthened, and that resorting to violence is never right

How to recognise who to trust and who not to trust, how to judge when a friendship is making them feel unhappy or uncomfortable, managing conflict, how to manage these situations and how to seek help or advice from others if needed

Respectful relationships

The importance of respecting others, even when they're very different from them (for example, physically, in character, personality or backgrounds), or make different choices or have different preferences or beliefs

Practical steps they can take in a range of different contexts to improve or support respectful relationships

The conventions of courtesy and manners

The importance of self-respect and how this links to their own happiness

That in school and in wider society they can expect to be treated with respect by others, and that in turn they should show due respect to others, including those in positions of authority

About different types of bullying (including cyber-bullying), the impact of bullying, responsibilities of bystanders (primarily reporting bullying to an adult) and how to get help

What a stereotype is, and how stereotypes can be unfair, negative or destructive

The importance of permission-seeking and giving in relationships with friends, peers and adults

Online relationships

That people sometimes behave differently online, including by pretending to be someone they're not

That the same principles apply to online relationships as to face-to-face relationships, including the importance of respect for others online (even when we're anonymous)

The rules and principles for keeping safe online, how to recognise risks, harmful content and contact, and how to report them

How to critically consider their online friendships and sources of information, including awareness of the risks associated with people they've never met

How information and data is shared and used online

Being safe

What sorts of boundaries are appropriate in friendships with peers and others (including in a digital context)

About the concept of privacy and the implications of it for both children and adults (including that it's not always right to keep secrets if they relate to being safe)

That each person's body belongs to them, and the differences between appropriate and inappropriate/unsafe physical and other contact

How to respond safely and appropriately to adults they may encounter (in all contexts, including online) who they don't know

How to recognise and report feelings of being unsafe or feeling bad about any adult

How to ask for advice or help for themselves or others, and to keep trying until they're heard

How to report concerns or abuse, and the vocabulary and confidence they need to do so

Where to get advice (e.g. family, school, other sources)
